The question is, therefore, a purely legal one, and the precedents of our government have been to have such questions, when appealed to the President, referred to the law officer of the government for his opinion, and upon which the President would base his decision. This course was pursued by Presidents Jackson, Tyler, Pierce, Van Buren, Filtore, and others, and has been the uniform practice of the government. Knowing these facts and believing this to be the proper way to seitle any difference of view as regards the law which might exist between the secretary and commissioner, I addressed you a communication some time since making an appeal for your decision of the powers of the commissioner under the act of July 20, 1868. This appeal I understand is not to be entertained, but the subject is to be treated rather as a personal difference between the secretary and myself. In this connession it is proper to add that the personal conduct of the secretary has been such as to produce the tender of my resignation until some opportunity is granted for vindicating my administration of the Internal Revenue Bureau. In justice to the public interest placed under my charge and the importance to the tax-payers of a proper solution of these difficulties, I mes respectfully decline to tender you my resigna-tion, and, trusting it will not be deem inappropriate, I will again request that your present determination may be reconsidered and an in-vestigation of the matter of difference between the secretary and myself be referred to the At-torney General for his legal opinion."

MRS. FAIR, THE FREE-LOVE MURDET 183.—A San Francisco corres pondent of the New York Herald has had a comewhat remarkable interview recently with Mrs. Fair, the murderess of Crittenden, in her cell in the San Francisco jail. Crittenden, in her cell in the San Francisco jail. This strange woman, it seems, contested the right of Crittenden to live with his wife because they did not love one another, and holds to it that she (the murderess) and Crittenden were the lawful pair, because they did love one another. Accordingly, in a moment of temporary insanity she shot Crittenden, and now regretted only one thing—that he was not present to defend her. She feels confident of a reprieve, because, as she says, her case is a political one, and cause, as she says, her case is a political one, and when she is tried again there will be a new judge on the bench. Love, Jealousy and Gunpowder.—Ford P. Hall, of Rochester, yesterday shot paymaster Gouverneur R. R. Kortland, U. S. N., near Baggs's hotel, in Utica, N. Y. The ball lodged in the shoulder and inflicted a painful but not serious wound. A young lady of Utica is involved in the affair and the shooting is attributed to jealousy.

The city is overwhelmin by full, and the hotels and lodging houses are compelled to turn away large numbers of patrons. There are profuse decorations in all the streets of the city, and flags and flowers and busts of Scott are seen everywhere. There were some illuminations last night. The assemblage at the banquet this afternoon will include a number of lord's lieutenants and conveners of counties, noblemen of Scotland and provorts of many towns, besides ladies and gentlemen we'll known in all, science and literature. The Westfield Disaster. New York, August 9.—The coroner's inquest in the Westfield disaster commenced to-day. Julius Raymond, the first witness testified that his father was killed by the explosion. He said he stood beside the engine watching its motion when the explosion took place; was certain no but himself was in the engine room for about ten minutes before the explosion; he observed the steam gauge just before the boiler exploded, but did not notice the figures presented. In answer to a juror, witness reiterated the statement that no one befides himself was in the engine room for ten minutes before the explosion. Other Inspectors Broll and Hall continued their in-quiry to-day into the Westfield explosion. Inspector Matthews was re-examined. Fe admitted that when inspectors have a great deal of work they authorize their clerks to make out certificates and sign the inspector's name; inspectors do not get inside the boilers to them. Captain Belknap said if he had anything in say in the matter the practice would be different in the future. He admitted that Matthews was a good engineer.

Mr. and Mrs. Colburn (nee Buffenberger) are here, at their old home, where I saw them this evening. They are confident of success, and have good reason for being so. Feeling here is all in their favor, the majority thinking the poison was irjected after death by the malice of Thompson, the prosenting witness who has not my to the present cuting witness, who has not up to the present time made his appearance. The highest legal talent of the State is arrayed on Colburn's side— Judge Harrison and Chauncey Olds, the greatest criminal lawyers of the west. At the inquest to-morrow Professor Wormley, of Columbus, will be examined on the presence of poison by science raised.

Serious Charges Against Steamboat New York, August 9.—Ex-Inspector Berry-man has made serious charges against Inspector Mathews, one of which accuses the latter of Mathews, one of which accuses the latter of forging the former's signature to a certificate of the steamship North America. This, on examination, proved unfounded. Berryman also exhibits a list of six or eight steamers which at various times were refused certificates by him, but received them from Mathews. He asserts that the latter was actuated by interested motives incidentally; also his statements tend to show that great demoralization exists in the inspection service. His testimony appears lightly regarded by other inspectors who refer to his quarrel with Matthews, and the fact that several charges were preferred against him (Berryman) charges were preferred against him (Berryman) at Washington as indications that the present statements are made for malicious and revengeful purposes.

Resolutions were adopted that a committee of three be appointed to prepare a petition to the federal Congress for the establishment of a National Labor Bureau.
